Illinois Central System Alive to Importance of Adequate Railway Service

No phase of the railway business is more important to the public than that of adequate service. Business cannot be carried on freely, labor cannot be kept fully employed at good wages in its various occupations, the country cannot prosper without good railway service. Whenever the demand for transportation is greater than the supply, this fact stands out.

To provide adequate service a railroad must raise and spend great sums of money regularly for new equipment and other facilities. It must also have at all times an efficient organization of employees who are eager to serve the public. Both in the matter of modern equipment and in having an efficient organization of employees to serve the public, the Illinois Central System was never in so good condition as now.

Although the Illinois Central System has been a liberal purchaser of new equipment every year for a number of years past, it has placed orders during the last thirty days for additional new equipment costing $25,515,870, as follows:

2,000 40-Ton Composite Box Cars.....	$ 4,460,000
4,000 50-Ton Composite Gondola Cars.....	8,112,000
200 Steel Underframe Stock Cars.....	401,000
200 Express Refrigerator Cars.....	917,600
25 Mountain Type Locomotives.....	1,691,375
3 Steel Parlor Cars.....	114,000
30 Steel Coaches.....	786,750
8 Steel Compartment Coaches.....	220,800
6 Steel Chair Cars.....	170,604
9 Steel Baggage Cars.....	170,001
10 Steel Baggage-Mail Cars.....	221,740
215 Steel Suburban Cars Equipped for Operation by Electricity.....	8,250,000
Total.....	$25,515,870

We are now in another period of heavy traffic on the railroads, all previous records on car loadings having recently been broken. In such a period as this our patrons are finding the Illinois Central System strengthened in every way and capable of carrying by far the greatest load in its entire history.

The achievement of the Illinois Central System in this regard have been made possible by the favorable position in earnings so consistently enjoyed by this carrier. The Illinois Central System has an unbroken dividend record dating back to 1860. For that reason it enjoys the confidence of investors and has always been able to raise the money for additions and betterments whenever such money was needed. Only the railroad that is making money is the railroad that can afford to keep its plant up to a standard well in advance of the needs of its patrons.

We recognize that our task is to serve our patrons efficiently, and we are leaving no stone unturned to accomplish that end.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,

President, Illinois Central System.

HEY BROTHERS ON MOTOR TRIP; HAD FINE EXPERIENCE

Went to Convention in New Orleans; Saw New Invention.

The following from the Sterling Gazette, concerning a journey taken by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hey, of Dixon, and his brother, Clement and wife, of Sterling will be of interest to Dixonites.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Hey, of Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hey of Dixon, are home from a trip to New Orleans, where they attended the national convention of ice cream manufacturers, November 17, 18 and 19.

They motored through Illinois to Cairo, crossed the Mississippi on a ferry and toured southern Missouri and Arkansas. They struck the only bad weather of their trip, rain making the roads so bad, especially on the hills, that they gave up their auto trip and completed their journey by rail.

Saw New Invention.

They left their car in Bytville, Ark., which Clement Hey says is a very attractive little town, one of the best towns he saw on the trip through the south. They took a train to Memphis and while in that city attended a demonstration of a new development of sound, called the "art of light" which is a new attempt to produce music without sound and by means of light thrown upon a screen in rhythmic order and in pleasing color balance. Mr. Hey said the effect was pleasing, and about all it lacked to make it highly enjoyable was some music to go with the colors. The inventor of the new "art of light" claims that the eye can enjoy light music just as much as the ear can enjoy sound.

Passed Cotton Fields. From Memphis to New Orleans the railroad trip was uneventful. The south has had a dry season and grass was dried up and trees looked dead and withered. However, the cotton crop was better than last year and they saw many cotton pickers at work in the fields and inspected a cotton gin while on their trip. They were delighted with the great numbers of brilliant poinsettias they saw in full bloom.

New Orleans is a city of over 400,000 inhabitants, and while it has many modern buildings and the hotel industry is well developed, the chief charm of the city is its old association and the quaint French and Spanish quarters that still exist, much as they used to in days of old.

They were shown the old jail where a famous pirate mysteriously escaped just before Andrew Jackson's victory in the war of 1812. During the battle, the pirate showed up with a well armed force and helped fight against the British.

The ice cream manufacturers reported good business but said the season had not been as good as the year before, due to continued cold and rainy weather of the summer. However, the establishment of ice cream as a regular food product was clearly shown to be a national institution now and its use all over the country has grown greatly in recent years.

More Than 2,000 Miles.

The return trip from Bytville, Ark., was made on the west side of the river. They passed through a number of old French and Spanish settlements along the river, peculiar little towns and as picturesque as they are interesting. From St. Louis they drove to Springfield and thence to Peoria and home. In all, they made 1,200 miles by auto and 900 by train on the round trip.

The roads were good most of the way, excepting where they ran into mud going down. The Missouri roads were mostly gravel, but they and the dirt roads were patrolled and in good shape. Some detours were encountered on account of pavements being put down in Arkansas. Very soon the road from the Missouri line to Memphis will be paved all the way.

IF YOU CAN NAME A BETTER TEAM THAN THIS, GO TO IT!

Presenting Notre Dame in Battle Formation, Said By Experts to Be Exponents of 1928 Football, and Called By Many the Champion Eleven of the Rapidly Ending Season

With the defeat of Illinois by Minnesota and the failure of any eleven in the east to rise to conspicuous heights, the tendency seems general to nominate Notre Dame as the champion football team of the year. One expert wrote Knute Rockne's team is playing 1928 football while their opponents are still in the 1924 stage. Rockne is considered a leading exponent of the modern game.

TEN MILLIONS AT FOOT BALL GAMES DURING THE SEASON

Game's Future Insured By Great Interest Shown in Play.

New York, Dec. 1.—(By the Associated Press)—Football has entertained more than 10,000,000 persons throughout the United States this fall, and overflowing college coffers augur well for the game's future.

With national championships settled to the extent possible under necessarily brief schedules, California, the five-year undefeated eleven of the Pacific Coast, will meet Pennsylvania at Berkeley, New Year's Day and at the same time undefeated Notre Dame will play undefeated Stanford.

The eastern season ended in a triple tie. Pennsylvania Yale and Dartmouth closed through without defeat, although all participated in deadlocks. Yale captured the "Big Three" honors by defeating Princeton and Harvard. Williams repeated its conquest among the "Little Three" and at the same time stopped Cornell's three-year winning streak. Holy Cross made the best record of the year, large Catholic institutions, scoring victories over Fordham and Boston College while Fordham conquered Georgetown.

Illinois, favorite in the Western Conference, was eliminated when Minnesota defeated the eleven by the formidable "Red" Grange 20-7. Chicago thereby winning the title. Notre Dame, not a member of the conference, defeated two of its closest rivals, Florida and Washington and Lee both of Alabama, will play a deciding game Saturday.

The year has produced numerous stellar individual performances with Grange leading the honors. Cuddeback of Stanford shouldered the attack which led California, 20-0, Garbisch of the Army kicked four goals to beat the Navy. The toe of Kruz saved Pennsylvania and that of McBride has won for Syracuse.

The west has a great quartet besides Grange, in Schutte of Minnesota, McCarty of Chicago and Bob Curley and Ralph Baker of Northwestern. The performances of the Notre Dame quartet, Layden, Stuhlreher, Crowley and Miller, have stood out also.

Cairo Independents are Champs of So. Illinois

By Associated Press Leased Wire. The Cairo Independents won the Southern Illinois independent football title Sunday by defeating an all-star aggregation at Anna, Sunday, 6-3. Cairo's touchdown resulted from a brilliant twisting run through the entire Anna team in the third quarter by Crain, who played a spectacular offensive and defensive game, twice in his role of safety man preventing Anna's touchdowns. Floyd's drop kick from the 20 yard line gave Anna her points.

Each team previously had defeated the other, but had lost no other games.

(By Murphy)

The second round in the Junior "B" basketball tournament went off as scheduled Saturday morning with the White and Black Sox again the winners. Both games were good ones with all players in the game all the time and when last heard all players were still playing the games over. The Blue Sox were the unfortunate ones in the first contest getting but 2 points while the Blacks got 10. Those who played were: Blue Sox, Austin, Capt.; Lockett, Tate, Brown, Worley and Ford. Black Sox, Senoff, Capt.; Geo. Lebre, Holley, Wilhelm, Gene Lebra and Quail.

The second game was closer and harder fought, but in the end the White Sox triumphed over the Reds by a score of 4-0, and kept their standing at the head of the list with the Black Sox. The players in this game were: White Sox, Wilson, Pett, Blackburn, Anderson, Craig and Stodder. Red Sox, Dockery, Redfern, O'Malley, Lambert and Smith.

Next Saturday should see some interesting contests in this tournament and the two leaders are scheduled to play each other while the two low teams will also fight to see who keeps in the cellar.

The Corn Huskers retained their position at the top of the column by defeating the Hay Shakers Saturday morning in the Junior "A" basketball tournament by the overwhelming score of 18-0. The Corn Huskers, with every player present had things all their own way, although the Hay tossers fought desperately in their losing battle.

The Huskers had in their lineup, Flannigan, Blackburn, Herbst, Sawyer, Marks, Tate, Peterson and L. Hasselton. The Hay Shakers used Padgett, Nixon, Lair, Keneha, H. Hasselton and Heimlicher.

The real battle of the day was that

SPORTS SORTS

Both Harvard and Yale had trouble stopping "Swede" Oberlander, Dartmouth's fast moving halfback. He's the big punch of the "Green" offense.

This has been a tough season for two of the south's most widely known teams, Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech. Both have suffered several reverses.

Kaw of Cornell and Boynton of Williams, All-American selections in their day, are starting for the Buffalo professional football team.

In Wilson, formerly of Penn State, the Army has a great running back, and in Hewitt, formerly of Pitt, one of the best defensive men in the east. Quite a combination to stop.

Coach Harlow of Colgate, despite the Nebraska defeat, will consider the season a huge success if he beats Syracuse.

"Chuck" Darling of Boston College is one of the best punters in the east.

"Ducky" Pond, Yale halfback, has a habit of playing his best in the big games. His 48-yard run for a touchdown enabled the Blue to set a tie with the Army.

Never, Stanford's versatile athlete, is one of the outstanding fullbacks on the coast. He's also a clever pitcher.

The 1924 crop of quarterbacks has not as yet produced any "Thomas Edson" thinkers. Stuhlreher of Notre Dame is one of the best.

Maybe the turkey didn't agree with them—so they won with Sullivan, Schermer and Reagan. Neither were the Cake Eaters out in full force but Teeter, Dockery, Muzz and Strub did the best they could, making their opponents know that they had played a game of basket ball.

Things are moving along fine in all classes of the Physical Department, attendance is increasing and new recruits are constantly joining the classes. Its never too late to start and one can get in any time without that "being behind" feeling. HONEY BETTER THAN ALCOHOL IN RADIATORS?

Wisconsin Bee Expert Advises Motorists to Use Honey.

Madison, Wis.—The automobile radiator freezing season is at hand and motorists who are advised by Miss Malita D. Fisher, secretary of the Wisconsin State Beekeepers association, of a novel scheme of protecting radiators. The use of a solution of honey and water will save motor owners much trouble Miss Fisher says.

Honey and water in about equal parts of volume, makes the best and safest anti-freeze mixture for automobile radiators," declares Miss Fisher. "A fifty-fifty solution is advisable when the temperature does not go below zero. When it goes below that point, more honey should be added.

"It doesn't evaporate.

"A mixture of honey and water does not evaporate like alcohol and water does not corrode like salt solution does not freeze hard, and therefore does not break or crack cylinders or radiators. Any kind of off-flavored or dark honey, provided it is well ripened, is suitable. Do not use honeyed or unripened honey.

"The honey and water should be thoroughly mixed by boiling before being placed in the radiator. Do not fill the radiator full and do not use any honey mixture unless the gaskets are perfectly tight."

CARDS! CARDS! CARDS!
The choicest and most attractive we have ever had. Order early other wise you will be disappointed.
B. F. SHAW PRINTING CO.

New York—The money changers have entered the temple of art. St. Paul bows his head as the throng passes in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

And now Jean Vigoroux, noted critic of Paris, says that the statue is a fake. And further, that the many of the paintings and sculptures bought by the nouveau riche of America since the World War are fakes.

Be not downcast, St. Paul! Even the blessed Virgin has been bartered under false pretenses!

In the South of France. At the close of the war. An ancestral chateau. An impoverished son of an impoverished father.

In Paris. An American woman worth millions.

An invitation to visit the chateau at night. The government will not permit art treasures to be taken out of the country.

A friend warns her that she is to be duped. She is offended at the suggestion and accepts the invitation.

By flickering candle light she is shown dusty old paintings. Candle light and secrecy from the government—something romantic about that.

Out, Madame, a genuine Raphael! And that, voilà! a Corot!

Madame will take the Raphael at five figures.

The cute little wormwood holes in the frame were shot in with a shotgun. The picture is at least three weeks old.

Angelo, Turner, Raphael, de Vico, Botticelli, Corot—what crimes are committed in tiny names!

War-torn millionaires strutting their stuff before spurious copies of your masterpieces. Dull women seeking brilliance from dusty counterfeiters.

Money will buy anything for those emptyheads—even reality for a tame Madonna.

A Perfect Economic Cycle

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to guarantee the service and quality of the petroleum products it sells because its products and its manufacturing processes are standardized.

The highly specialized machinery, the operation of the plant, and the methods of the workers—all are reduced to standard practice. The workers trained for their job, the special equipment, made and adjusted to yield the highest degree of effectiveness—all are factors in standardizing the product. But, standardization is without avail if there is any interruption in the operation of the highly specialized manufacturing equipment.

With expensive, high-powered machinery idle, interest charges and plant depreciation

The WELL DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Wear Your Coat Buttoned

How astonishing that common sense is so uncommon in the matter of dress! Take, for example, so simple a thing as a coat. Left unbuttoned as it often is indoors, it hangs dejectedly or flaps grotesquely. The smartness of this garment is in its trim, closefitting, smoothly draping lines; in the way it becomes one with the wearer's figure and personality. When you try on a coat you always button it, don't you, to insure that it "sets" properly to your hills and valleys? You would not be content to slip it on and judge the effect without fastening it.

Therefore, always wear your coat buttoned. In the first place, it will fit and hang correctly. Secondly, it will gradually curve to the outlines of your figure, taking on added style. Thirdly, it will impart a consciousness of trim-ness and snugness, not to be confused with tightness, which make a man feel that his clothes are a part of him, not apart from him.

This is true of every type of coat, but it is doubly true of the double-breasted model. No double-breasted coat is prepossessing unless it is worn fastened. Left open, it is the clumsiest of all garments, standing away from the figure and looking as shapeless as a retired burlesque queen.

This season, the vogue of the double-breasted style, both in sack coats and overcoats, is marked, due, perhaps, to the sponsorship of the Prince of Wales and his coterie of followers. Do not acquire a double-breasted suit instead of, but in addition to, a single-breasted sack, for the double-breasted model alone soon becomes tiresome.

Pictured in the accompanying sketch is one of the new models, of which there are many, showing the broad, notched lapel, although the peaked lapel or semi-peaked lapel, lately reintroduced, is just as much in favor. There are 8 buttons only two of which are used. Such a coat is wide of shoulder; straight of drape; full of chest; snug of hip, but slightly waisted to define the figure more than the single-breasted sack does. The buttons are well spaced. The trousers are full-cut and free-draping. Its youthful appearance is what commends the double-breasted coat to so many men.

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and breaks the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles.
 Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

CORRIGAN

by EDMUND SNELL

IV—THE FASCINATING MISS PATERSON

"FELLOWES!" shouted Corrigan suddenly from the veranda rail, "bring me those binoculars, will you?"

The first assistant, lean, spare and hatchet-faced, left the map he had been studying intently, and went over to where a deal table stood in a corner by the wall.

"Right hand drawer, isn't it?" he demanded.

"That's the ticket. Quick, old son.
 There's something here I don't quite understand."

The proprietor of the Orang Puteh estate was gazing intently through a conical lens purposely left between the rubber trees to where, at the foot of the slope, two white-clad forms were checking a heap of trunks. The morning train had just arrived. A tall Sikh watchman, resident in the inevitable turban and the new livery of khaki with bright red piping, was shouting something to a man whose clothes were laboriously weeding. A couple of nude children and a bent old native who had nothing better to do were regarding the newcomers with intense interest.

Fellowes handed over the binoculars. Corrigan focused them swiftly and carefully.

"It's a woman," declared the assistant, who was possessed of long sight.

Corrigan discarded the glasses with evident disgust.

"Damn!" he said loudly.

"She's deuced good looking," pursued Fellowes, ignoring the proprie-tor's remark. "Nicely turned out, too. Seems to know her way about.
 Don't much care for the look of the chap who's with her. Watchman Number Two looks mighty impressed. By Gad! She must speak the lingo like a native!"

"You don't happen to notice the name she's got sewn on her petticoats, at that distance?" growled Corrigan sarcastically.

Fellowes grinned amiably.

"What's wrong?" he inquired, coming round to face the other.

The great Corrigan folded his arms.

"Wrong! Why, the place'll be swarming with women before we know where we are! I didn't bargain for this. I can give you my word.
 When they sent me his pedigree from Singapore, I thought we were on a good thing. The agents assured me we couldn't have a better man to replace young White while he's away; and hinted that, with the rif-raff that's pouring out east just now, he'd be wise to look round and see if we couldn't squeeze him in as a permanency."

Fellowes whistled.

"And you hadn't a notion he was married?"

"Good Lord, no! It's upset all my calculations. The shack I set apart for this new chap can hardly be looked upon as married quarters.
 You know what women are. Mrs.
 White won't thank me, on her return, if she finds I've allowed a strange man to occupy their place."

Fellowes gazed over his shoulder at the man who was already halfway toward the unwelcome intruder who up the slope, the man following a couple of yards behind.

"She can have my place," he jerked out suddenly.

Corrigan started as if he had been stung.

"My poor old idiot!" he cried compassionately, "you can't be well!"

"I'll solve the problem, at any rate."

Corrigan thought. Presently he stuck his hands deep in his pockets and frowned.

"All right. If you're fool enough to turn out for them—so be it! But, you can take it from me, that young man's in for a pretty warm quarter of an hour when I get him alone, and I'll favor those damned agents with a piece of my mind, at the same time."

"I suppose it is a bit thick," agreed Fellowes. "After all, our jolly little island's no place for women folk.
 Wonder if she plays tennis?"

"I surveyed myself in a cracked mirror which hung on the wall. A wealth of blue bristle reminded him rather forcibly that he had omitted to shave that morning. He wore no tunic and a somewhat weather-stained cricket shirt, the sleeves rolled up to the elbows, exposed a gauze singlet of which the top button was missing. His khaki slacks had

"IT'S A WOMAN," DECLARED THE ASSISTANT.

shrank so that their lower extremities exposed, above his brown canvas boots, quite a noticeable amount of dark blue sock that was guiltless of suspenders.

Corrigan watched him with an amused smile.

"I won't offer to oblige you with a change, old bean," he said. "Your somewhat unprepossessing appearance may have the desired effect.
 She'll think she's fallen in with a crowd of brutes—and decide to take the next boat home."

"Good morning!" A voice like the tinkling of a bell came from the foot of the short flight of wooden steps.

"Good morning," echoed Corrigan.
 "Come in out of the sun. Morning, Paterston. I suppose you are Paterson?"

"That's my name," replied a tall, slim youth, with a fresh, pink and white complexion. He followed the girl on to the veranda. "Me—er—sister was staying with some old friends in Singapore—and insisted on coming with me. I hope that's all right?"

A swift glance, full of deep meaning, passed between Corrigan and his first assistant.

"I'm afraid you won't find this much of a health resort, Miss Paterson," he told her, pushing forward a cane chair. She extended an incredibly small hand and Corrigan held it for a moment in his huge paw. He greeted her brother with grim cordiality and proceeded to introduce Fellowes.
